ELIAS FILHAGE WAHLSTROM

About Me

I am an extroverted, energetic, and optimistic person, having moved from Sweden to Barcelona a year and a half ago. I am looking for a workplace where I can develop and make an impact with greater leverage. I am usually not comfortable bragging, but since I am excited about working for you, I list some of my accomplishments below.

ACCOMPLISHMENTS

I have founded a one-person business reaching over 100 clients and a monthly revenue of more than 4 000 EUR in the first year. I am a private teacher in economics, primarily tutoring Swedish university students through personal video lectures in any class related to economics and business. I have done everything myself, including building the website, digital marketing (SEO, Ads, Social media), event marketing at universities, administration, and the operative work teaching my students. I have held over 1 000 hours of lectures, covering virtually every bachelor-level course in economics & business and all universities in Sweden. I also teach non-students in for example stock market investments, business creation, digital marketing, and website development.

In 2020, I founded a small think tank related to ideology, politics, and economics. Two of my friends from university joined, and we published 34 articles and 21 podcast episodes. We had some events with local political organizations and reached a few thousand people with our publications.

I have great experiences from my academic background. I completed 6 years' worth of full-time university studies in 5 years. In my third year, I studied two Bachelor's programs simultaneously to receive two degrees. Hence, I have three degrees: MSc in Economics, BSc in Economics, and BSc in Business Administration. I have the highest possible grade in a majority of my university classes and was one of the best students at one of the best graduate schools in Sweden.

I have become used to a heavy schedule since being a teenager, which feels more like a trait than an accomplishment. Aside from my main employment, I have continuously worked as a football referee with an average of over 100 games per year since I was 16 years old. I have worked more than full-time at most of my jobs while allocating a lot of time to several small businesses and other side projects. I performed well despite studying two full-time university programs and working simultaneously for a year. What seems like work to others feels like play to me.
